How do we treat complaints with multiple aspects?

Where a single complaint covers several aspects of care/treatment received, the complaint should be recorded as a single complaint for the number of complaints received. However, within the subject, service and profession areas each individual aspect that the complaint relates to needs to be recorded.

Does each subject area need to have a 'professional area'?

If a complaint covers several subjects/services but just one profession then you only need to enter one figure within the professional area. However if a complaint covers a range of professions then you would enter a complaint into each of the relevant professional fields.

How do you log complaints that don't fit into the prescribed subject areas?

If they don't fit into any of the provided categories then it would need to be included in 'other'. It would also be useful if you could send us details of any categories that don't fit into the current matrix as this could assist us to develop the system in the future and in the short term we can add them into the lookup table for guidance to assist other organisations. Email suggestions can be sent to Comp Nhs \(NHS DIGITAL\)

If we receive a complaint with three subjects do each of those subjects need to have a service and profession allocated to them even if they are the same?

For example:

Subject Communication Values Other

Service Mental Health Mental Health Mental Health

Profession Scientific, technical and professional

The complaint that covers three subjects doesn't have to have three service or professions (unless it also covered three of these). In the example above the complaint is recorded as three subjects but just one service area and one profession.

Multiple Sites – What is the correct process if a complaint spans 1 organisation spread across 2 sites?

A single complaint cannot be recorded across multiple sites without duplicating it in the count of total complaints (if recorded as a separate complaint against each site). Therefore it should be recorded against the primary site of complaint. Then within this one complaint it can be logged by the various subject/service areas.

Multiple Organisations – What is the correct process if the complaint spans 2 organisations?

This depends on how a complaint is being investigated. Where a complaint spans several organisations and it is being investigated by each of those organisations then they should be recorded as separate complaints by each of the organisations. However, if a complaint applies primarily to one organisation who investigates it then it is only that organisation who should record it.

How do we record data for sites where we don't have an ODS site code?

Data for sites where there is no ODS site code should be recorded in a single total against your main trust code. So for example if a trust had 115 complaints in total and 15 at a site without an ODS site code then the return might read:

Site Code	Site Name	Total Complaints
RZZ01	ANON GENERAL HOSPITAL	50
RZZ02	ANON HEALTHCARE CLINIC	50
RZZ	ANON NHS FOUNDATION TRUST	15

Note that we don't require a Trust total that sums up all the complaints as we will generate this.

In the longer term sites should have an ODS code which can be requested from the ODS service at the NHS Digital. It is the responsibility of the OC1 administrator at each trust to request these. If this person is not known then the ODS team can be contacted for further information and guidance:

As a CCG what data should our return include?

CCG complaints returns should only generally include complaints about commissioning decisions and Out of Hours (either directly employed OOH services or services commissioned from independent providers who are not completing a return). Complaints about services provided by hospitals and other providers should be included on the KO41a of the service provider.

Where do complaints regarding Out of Hours / Walk-in Centres go?

They should be logged as Other Community Healthcare Services [5.31]

PHM & CHS? What does it stand for?

Public Health Medicine & Community Health Services – and covers the medical aspects of public health practice and population health needs.

Do we record verbal/oral complaints?

A complaint made verbally should be included on the return if it is recorded and investigated and/or a response provided to the complainant.

We record complaints as either ‘formal’ or ‘informal’ – should all data be included or just that for formal complaints?

This collection doesn't use the terms 'formal' and 'informal'. So what could be classed as an informal complaint (e.g. a complaint made verbally) can be included on the return if it is recorded and then investigated and/or a response provided to the complainant. However, if a complaint/comment is recorded for internal purposes (and maybe classed as 'informal') but no further action/investigation is taken then it should not be included. This would be seen more as a comment or suggestion rather than a complaint.

Do we record withdrawn complaints?

If a complaint is withdrawn during the quarter you are completing then you can either remove it or log it as not upheld.

Do we include complaints when we are unable to obtain third party consent?

We only need data recording for complaints that organisations are investigating/responding to. If third party consent is not received and this means a complaint is not investigated, this should not be included.

Various facets of a complaint are upheld/partially upheld/not upheld. How should these be recorded?

Look at the overall complaint and judge whether the majority of it was upheld or partially upheld (or not upheld) and record it accordingly. In an ideal world each subject/service area could have a category of upheld/partially/not upheld. However, when this was developed we were trying to keep the collection form relatively concise although we may need to consider this in the future.

We record complaints as upheld/not upheld/partially upheld. However, we also have other categories like; referred to Safeguarding Investigation, referred to Human Resources or excluded under Regulation 12.

If a referral means that the complaint is transferred outside of your organisation then you can close it and either exclude it from your return if it's within the quarter you are returning for, or if it's already been recorded in a previous quarter then select one of the 3 categories (upheld, partially upheld or not upheld) and mark it as resolved. Comments can always be added for clarification.

For those that are referred within your organisation (e.g. if the HR referral is part of your organisation) then this is technically still under investigation by your organisation so stays there until its resolved one way or the other.

Should Total Carried Forward match Total Brought Forward in the following quarter?

These totals should be equal or close to being equal. However, due to the possibility of complaints being withdrawn between reporting periods it is possible that the Total Brought Forward in a quarter will be slightly lower than the Total Carried Forward from the previous period. At present we cannot record withdrawn complaints as a separately identifiable data item.

We are required to bring forward anything that is open at the start of the period. Does this include any complaints which may have been received as far back as 1-2 years ago which have perhaps re-opened and remain unresolved.

The Total Brought Forward should include any open complaints that are being investigated at the start of the relevant reporting period

When the Total New [2.6] complaints are broken down into the categories in Section 6 and the categories in Section 7 and then added together in field [7.71] Total, this gives the impression that the amount of complaints received is much higher.

A single complaint can have several aspects to it. It may cover several subject areas which can lead to a larger subject total than the number of new complaints. This is fine but we have noticed some potential issues with the subject sections of the return (Section 6 & 7).

It looks as though some organisations have been recording every new complaint in both section 7 (subject non-clinical) and section 6 (subject – clinical) and appear to be doubling their numbers.

As an example, if an organisation has 30 new complaints and then enters 30 complaints in section 7 and 30 in section 6 they will get an overall subject total of 60 complaints in 7.71. Because this is technically possible (a single complaint could have both clinical and non-clinical aspects) it passes validation.

While this may be correct it looks as though they have tried to make every complaint find a home in both section 6 and section 7. While each new complaint must have one or more subject areas recorded it is only necessary to complete sections 6 if the complaint has a clinical aspect otherwise leave this section blank and just enter the relevant subject items within section 7.

Do you expect all of our providers to be submitting the KO41a return when they are not all NHS organisations?

Where a service is commissioned by the NHS from the private sector and that organisation does not have a complaints system the commissioner is responsible for investigating and recording complaints and should provide the information as part of their KO41a return.

If the private sector service does have a complaints procedure the private sector body should provide a KO41a return?

In summary, all complaints need to be captured on the KO41a either on the commissioners or the providers KO41a return.

Who do we contact for issues with the Datix system?

Organisations creating the KO41 report in Datix will need to upgrade to Datix version 14.0.4 or greater. Any queries relating to Datix and upgrades should be made to the Datix support team on (020) 8971 1963 or support@datix.co.uk

Who do we contact for issues with the Ulysses system?

Issues around the Ulysses system should be directed to Tel: 02392 440540
